ALLOU, Gilles

Paris 1670–2.II.1751

Pupil at the Académie royale from 1694, agréé 1710, reçu 1711, with portraits of Coysevox, Coypel and Bon Boullogne. He was recorded at rue du Petit Lion 1713–27; rue de Meslé, près la porte Saint-Martin, 1728–44; fauxbourg du Temple, chez M. de Liniere 1745–51. Some thirty portraits, presumably in oil, were exhibited at the Salons from 1737 to 1742, but are largely untraced.

One portrait by him played a role in a court case concerning the estate of a sieur Valon de Montoisson, whose nephew and niece sought to argue that a pastel of Marie Bouvot, executed as a pendant to that of M. Valon, was evidence of concubinage against the claims of Mlle Bouvot's subsequent husband, a perruquier called Palluelle; the defence was that the pendant portrait was in fact of the late Mme Valon, and that Mlle Bouvot had herself portrayed, by Allou, for which she produced the receipt for 24 livres. The decision failed to clarify whether the Allou portrait was also in pastel or who was responsible for the pastel by Mme Valon (if indeed it was she).
