BEYER, Frau Wilhelm, née Gabrielle Bertrand

Lunéville 1730 – Vienna 1790

Gabrielle Bertrand, or Bertherand, was the daughter of the tapissier François Bertrand, concierge of the Schloß Schönbrunn, also described as Franz Stephan's gardener. She was a painter of flowers and genre pieces; she worked in miniature and on porcelain, and also left numerous pastel portraits at Vienna, Brussels and Naples. From 1738 she lived in Vienna, where she was trained at the Akademie; she became a member in 1771. In the same year she married the sculptor Wilhelm Beyer. She taught the princesses Marie-Antoinette (q.v.) and Maria Caroline from 1764, and was well known at the imperial court.

A group of genre pictures in pastel which come from the Habsburg collections in Vienna have caused considerable attributional confusion. They were with Erzherzog Maximilian in the Castello di Miramare between 1860 and 1919 (as by Liotard), and are now in the Schönbrunn. R&L assign them to a single (unidentified) hand, although the single figure works are less distinctive than three pastel conversation pieces; they note that one, the group of children playing with chess pieces, probably corresponds with the pastel described as children playing with chestnuts inventoried as by Liotard in the private apartments of Maria Theresia in 1772. In fact there is a further pastel in the Miniaturkabinett that fits this description perfectly, and is here reassigned to Liotard (q.v.); it is evidently the lost portrait exhibited in the Salon de Saint-Luc in 1752.

The remaining pastels, evidently by this different hand, apparently Austrian and described as the "Schönbrunn pastelists" in the online Dictionary until 2015, shows the influence of Liotard in the three conversation pieces R&L knew. Among the other pieces is one influenced by Boucher. It has been suggested (on the Schönbrunn website until 2015) that they are all (including the Liotard) by Franz I. Stephan (q.v.) and his children. But the attribution of the pastels other than the Liotard to Gabrielle Bertrand-Beyer, here suggested in 2015, is confirmed by the description by Fortia de Piles of his trip in 1790–92 when he saw in the second room of the Aile droite of the Petit Belvédère, among 52 pictures, "Quatre portraits au pastel, dont un Tirolien et une Tirolienne, par madame Beyer, fort bons. Enfants qui soufflent des boules de savon, en pastel, par la même, très-joli." The first two of these evidently correspond to two pastels in von Mechel's catalogue "peints d'après nature [qui] se distinguent sur-tout parmi plusieurs autres de cette habile main [de Mme Beyer], qui se trouvent dans ce Cabinet."
