HUTCHISON, Joseph

Dublin 1747 – Bath 1830

Hutchison, Hutchisson, or Hutchinson is identified by Foskett as Joseph Hutchison of Bath. He trained at the Dublin Society schools from 1764, and was apprenticed to G. Carncross, an heraldic painter. He went to London c.1790, made portrait and animal pictures in oil and crayon, and exhibited miniatures at the Royal Academy 1792–1819 from various addresses. He was in Bath from 1795, recorded at 1 Westgate Buildings, next to Thomas Beach, 1799–1804, and thereafter at various addresses until his death in 1830. An oil portrait of the composer, singer and director of Bath Concerts, Venzazio Rauzzini, is in the Pump Room (Hutchison's print was advertised in the Bath chronicle, 15.v.1800), and several other oils are in Bath museums. By 12.i.1804 (Bath chronicle) he was described as "portrait and animal painter to THR the Duke and Duchess of York", mentioning another portrait of HRH accompanied by a dog which had been presented to the Corporation; in 1808 he received 10 gns for it. Several versions of the portrait of the Duchess of York with a Dalmatian are known, the pastel distinctly better than the oil.

A different Joseph Hutchison entered the Royal Academy Schools in 1795 aged 34.
