KOSTER, Simon de

Middelburg 1767 – London 1831

Portraitist, trained in the Middelburg Teeken Akademie, where he was awarded prizes in 1784 and 1785. He moved to London in 1788, where he was admitted to the Royal Academy Schools on 12.VIII.1797 “aged 27” [sic]. Some of his crayons of famous men seem to have been made in preparation for, and are only known from, engravings by James Daniell or associates and published by Boydell or Brydon. The sources of these portraits are not all known, but few if any are original. Some of the genre pieces are close to Russell. He also engraved a mezzotint of the Duke of York after a pastel by Schröder. A pencil profile of Nelson (1800) is said to have met with the subject’s approval, and was widely copied.
