Je vous prie de lui donner le temps à le bien faire.”; 2.XII.1770: “j’attends

le tableau de Liotard avec grand empressement, mais dans votre parure, point en négligé, ni dans l'habillement d'homme, vous aimant à voir dans la place qui vous convient.”; 7.V.1771, à Mercy: “Je suis enchantée de mon bureau, surtout de la masse, du portrait moins: je la connaissais plus jolie. Se tient-elle si droite et est-elle coiffée ainsi? J'attends le grand portrait de Liotard avec impatience, et j'espère qu'on n'oublie pas celui à cheval. Si vous pouviez en attendant m'envoyer son habillement peint à cheval, chapeau sur tête, en petit, si cela se peut, même si la ressemblance n'y est pas.” 6.VI.1771, à Mercy: J'attends avec impatience le portrait de ma fille, supposant qu'il réussira mieux que celui en petit; comme il a valu cependant à Liotard 1,800 livres, je trouve qu'il est toujours le même.” 17.VIII.1771: “J'ai reçu votre portrait en pastel, bien ressemblant; il fait mes délices et celles de toute la famille; il est dans mon cabinet où je travaille, et la masse dans ma chambre à coucher, où je travaille le soir; ainsi je vous ai toujours avec moi, devant mes yeux; dans mon cœur vous y êtes profondément toujours.” [this may refer to Kranzinger, q.v.]; L&R 282; R&L 478 n.r.
