RAEBURN, Sir Henry

Edinburgh 1756–1823

Scottish portrait painter. Apart from a trip to Italy around 1786, he seems to have worked almost entirely north of the border. His established œuvre is all in oil, and it is doubtful if he ever worked in pastel. The Patterson pendants, which are typical of Hodges's work, are misattributions, and the work sold in 1977 has not been seen.
