RESTOUT, Jean

Rouen 1692 – Paris 1768

A member of a large dynasty of painters, related to Hallé and the nephew of Jouvenet. Awarded the prix de Rome 1717, he remained in Paris; reçu 1720. He rose to be chancelier of the Académie royale in 1761. A prolific painter of religious works as well as some portraits, his use of pastel is unconfirmed (so that all attributions should be treated with caution). La Tour's striking portrait is testimony to his respect for the artist who, he told Diderot (confirmed independently by Rouxelin), was the only artist of stature who was able to communicate effectively. Among other pastellists he taught were Despax, Rupally, Handmann and Lesseline (qq.v.).
