

Neil Jeffares, Dictionary of pastellists before 1800

Online edition

TINELLI, Tiberio

Venice 1586–1638

History and religious painter and portraitist; pupil of Leandro Bassano (q.v.). His small portraits were popular in France, where Louis XIII (q.v.) is said to have sent him the order of Saint-Michel to persuade him to come to Paris (the award is not recorded in Colleville & Saint-Christo). The inducement was unsuccessful, although Louis XIII received a pastel of Louis Hesselin, the king's agent in Venice who acquired a number of pictures there and in Rome where he travelled with Sébastien Bourdon. Hesselin was later portrayed by Nanteuil and owned two pastels by Vouet according to his posthumous inventory.

Bibliography

Bénézit; Denis-Pierre-Jean Papillon de La Ferté, Extrait des différens ouvrages publiés sur la vie des peintres, Paris, 1726, I, p. 226; Schnapper 1994

Pastels

J.7166.101 M. [Louis] HESSELIN, né Cauchon (1602–1662), conseiller du roi, maître de la chambre aux deniers, pstl, 1633 (don: Louis XIII). Lit.: Papillon de La Ferté 1726, n.r.