VLEUGHELS, Nicolas

Paris 11.XII.1668 – Rome 10.XII.1737

A member of a family of painters (his father Philippe was a painter from Antwerp, his mother, Catherine, was sister of Nicolas de Platte-Montagne). Vleughels was in Rome from 1703 (where he resided at the Farnese palace), and travelled to Venice in 1707 and c.1711 and to Modena c.1712. He was involved in the sale of the Duke of Mantua's collection, which included Cagnacci's Martha dn the repentant Magdalene (now in Pasadena), a painting he copied while Rosalba Carriera copied one of the heads in profile; Vleughels's letter to her of 16.XI.1712 (from Modena) evidences their friendship (he sends her a painting, self-deprecatingly noting its deficiencies and adding "vous savez assez peindre à huile pour corriger de pareils ouvrages" (a remark which has since been over-interpreted). He also notes that he expects to receive pastel supplies from France which he will share. On his return to Paris he was agréé in 1715 and reçu in 1716. A protégé of the comtesse de Verrière, he was well connected within the French art world: he had known Pierre Crozat in Italy, while Jullienne owned Pesne's portrait of Vleughels, and he is thought to have introduced the connoisseur to Watteau. After Carriera's visit to Paris he arranged for a frame to be made for her morceau de réception at the Académie; he assisted her in obtaining pastel crayons there to send to her after her return (letter from Mariette, 22.X.1722); and they remained frequent correspondents. Vleughels acquired a number of her pastels. In 1724 he became directeur de l'École de France in Rome, where he remained until his death twelve years later. In Rome, 20.XII.1731, he married a Marie-Thérèse Gosset (1703–1756). He taught Jeaurat and Subleyras. Mariette was sceptical: "A peine savoit-il dessiner; il ne peignoit guère mieux." He occasionally made pastel studies, and a group of these, formerly belonging to the comte d'Orsay, are now in the Louvre. They relate to paintings made as early as c.1710, predating Rosalba's visit.
